

Xolotl Aztec God

In Aztec mythology Xolotl was the God of fire and lightning. He was often depicted as a dog headed man and helped guide souls on their journey. He was the twin brother to Quetzalcoatl who the Aztecs believed brought the sun into the world each day. Xolotl also had an important role as it was thought he guided the sun at night when it went to the underworld.

